Experience

As an architect, contract administrator and project manager, Jon's portfolio includes inspiring spaces such as theatres, arts centres, and museums. Alongside his consultancy-based roles, he has developed his skills as an expert witness in the construction industry, acting for clients in cases of professional negligence and defective design and workmanship. Jon has also given evidence in Court in respect of an Architect's performance.

Jon has wide-ranging experience in design and construction having completed both new-build and conversion projects for Housing Associations. He has also been involved in the refurbishment of grade I listed buildings, as well as theatres, art centres, cinemas and museums.

Jon is involved in all aspects of practice management. He was also a senior architect and later associate in an Arts Team, working on major theatre and museum refurbishments within a grade one listed building with extremely complex technical installations and contractual conditions. Since 2003, he has been an independent consultant architect, contract administrator and project manager in the arts sector working as an expert witness, auditor, teacher and HLF monitor.

Acting as HLF lead monitor on several projects, Jon has worked on a range of projects at various stages and of various sizes and working with associate monitors. He is currently appointed as lead monitor for landmarks across the UK, including a number of Grade II listed buildings.

As a Quality Management co-ordinator and auditor, Jon has over ten years of experience devising, implementing and auditing a QA system on behalf of a leading architectural practice.

Jon is fluent in French and is a partial Italian and Spanish speaker.
